

Jenn Streator

Jenn joined the Employee Disability Resources office at UW-Madison in July 2018 as an Employee Accommodation Specialist. She works with employees and applicants with disabilities and pregnancy-related medical conditions who are seeking reasonable accommodations. She provides direct support to employees, supervisors, and Human Resources personnel during the interactive process and ensures the university complies with various state and federal disability employment laws.

Jenn also manages the Divisional Disability Representative Program and is the project lead for implementing the Pregnant Worker's Fairness Act at UW-Madison. She loves the variety that each day brings, enjoys the ability to be creative and try new things, and values the relationships she's built across the university during her time in the role. Previously, Jenn worked at non-profits who supported people with disabilities, their families, and community.

Jenn received her M.S. in Rehabilitation Counseling from UW-Stout's Rehabilitation Counseling and is a Certified Rehabilitation Counselor (CRC).
