

Megan Howard

Megan Howard is an MBA candidate at the Wisconsin School of Business specializing in Strategic Human Resource Management. She previously studied at Brigham Young University (BYU) in Provo, Utah, where she earned bachelor's degrees in Psychology and Spanish Studies.

While completing her undergraduate degree, Megan worked as an academic mentor, supported youth at a crisis center, volunteered with organizations such as Encircle and the Utah State Hospital, and participated in several university research teams. These experiences fostered her passion for improving others' quality of life, particularly in the workplace, and ultimately led to her interest in human resources.

After graduating from BYU, Megan worked as an Accounting Clerk at NMI, where she learned the fundamentals of business operations. She then spent three years at BambooHR, where she held positions on the Implementation team as an HRIS Implementation Project Manager and later as a Payroll Data Specialist. In these roles, she gained experience in HR strategies, project management, HR software implementation, cross-team collaboration, and client relations.

As an MBA student, Megan has continued to strengthen her skills as a strategic HR professional. In the summer of 2025, she interned with Microsoft as an HR Business Partner, focusing on HR strategy and employee programs. Following her graduation in 2026, she will return to Microsoft full time to join its HR rotational program.

Outside of her professional pursuits, Megan enjoys spending time in nature, reading, and playing with her cats
